Re: In the Matter of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I had originally chosen Sonic, a competitive provider for my internet and phone connection at my office-- it is one of two providers that service my building (Comcast is the other). After being a previous unsatisfied Comcast customer, I decided to go with Sonic at my new office locations, and I have been very pleased with their services and connection reliability.

I believe that competition for internet and phone providers is critical to help keep costs down and also to allow customers access to other companies who offer better service. In places where there are so few provider choices (like my office), I find it very unfortunate that the FCC is considering taking actions that would limit competition.

Also, since I was pleased with Sonic at my office I also switched my home internet and phone service to them too, and so if you take the possibility of using them it affects me at two locations, along with a lot of other people.

Respectfully--

Daniel Morago
